STEPS

1. Remove tape seal (if present) and pull to separate the upper and lower sections of the controller housing.
2. With thumb pressure applied to the end of the chrome-colored joystick, push firmly to release the 8-way switch from the housing. You may need a small "blade" screwdriver to pry the housing wall away from the switch body.
3. Pull the wires to disconnect them from the switch. If the wires are soldered to the switch posts, you will need to cut the wires.
4. Insert the new 8-way switch into the housing and push firmly to seat. There is no up-down or left-right orientation until the wires are connected.
5. Attach the color-coded wires to the new switch as indicated in the diagram above. If the wires were soldered to the original switch, you will need to use the new wires included in the kit, attaching them to the cut wires using the butt connectors included in the kit. Be sure to match the wire colors.
6. Snap the two halves of the housing back together.
